

Abstract

A variable-bit-rate communication system is described. The communication system includes a variable-bit-rate transmitter that generates digital data at a first or a second bit rate and a variable-bit-rate receiver that receives the digital data. The digital data comprises a sequence of signaling waveforms having a first or a second duty cycle, respectively, wherein each signaling waveform has the same shape.

281KR5473/98.742696

↑
↑
↑